* Calculation of potentially recoverable losses under the PSLRA are determined by reference to the 15 U.S.C. § 78u-4(e). Thus, for shares acquired during the Class Period and not sold within 90 calendar days after the end thereof, potentially recoverable losses are calculated based on the average price of the security in the 90 days after the end of the Class Period. Fulton County sold all of its shares during the Class Period. For shares acquired during the Class Period and sold during the 90 days after the end of the Class Period, potentially recoverable losses are calculated by reference to the greater of either (i) the actual sales price at which these shares were sold, or (ii) the average price of the security in the days between the Class Period end date and the date of the sale.

Shares Purchased/Sold and Share Price for purchases/sales before May 27, 2008 are adjusted for the 2:1 stock split on that date.

* Calculation of potentially recoverable losses under the PSRA are determined by reference to the 15 U.S.C. § 78u-4(e). Thus, for shares acquired during the Class Period and not sold within 90 calendar days after the end thereof, potentially recoverable losses are calculated based on the average price of the security in the 90 days after the end of the Class Period. That price here is $21.19 per share. For shares acquired during the Class Period and sold during the 90 days after the end of the Class Period, potentially recoverable losses are calculated by reference to the greater of either (i) the actual sales price at which these shares were sold, or (ii) the average price of the security in the days between the Class Period end date and the date of the sale.

Shares Purchased/Sold and Share Price for purchases/sales before May 27, 2008 are adjusted for the 2:1 stock split on that date.
